Lisätiedot:

Language and Communication study units may be accepted on the basis of upper secondary education taught in English, and/or IB- diploma, Bachelor's or Master's degree taught in English, or two English language exemption tests (reading comprehension and written / oral production) in accordance with the recognition of prior learning (AHOT 1B) process. In line with the recognition of prior learning regulations in place at the university (see: <http://www oulu.fi/kielikoulutus/ahot>), other language courses completed in a higher educational institution will be accepted provided they cover the relevant field and level of communication (B2 on the CEFR scale).

Students who wish to be exempted from attendance can take an exemption test in reading field-related academic texts and give an academic presentation. In this way students can obtain the credits without attendance. The exemption exam is voluntary and can be taken only once. Students sign up for the exam in WebOodi by 15th January. The exemption test and presentation of oral production will be organised in February. Students not exempted in the above ways are required to participate in the course.

Information on the time and place of the classes is provided on the home pages of the Department of Health Sciences.

- to demonstrate the ability to give short speeches concerning business-related topics
- to demonstrate the ability to communicate with reasonable accuracy and self-correct mistakes if they have led to misunderstandings
- to demonstrate mastery of meetings and negotiations vocabulary

- to demonstrate the understanding of what a business plan entails

Business Talk (International):

By the end of the course, you will have demonstrated your ability

- to give an effective oral presentation in English
- to analyse and evaluate similarities and differences in academic study cultures.

to collaborate successfully as part of an intercultural team

Business Talk (Activation)

By the end of the course, students are able to:

- understand clearly-spoken English on a range of topics discussed in class
- participate in pairwork discussion of familiar everyday topics
- describe your own language learning style, with reference to a variety of learning strategies presented in class
- self-evaluate objectively, and describe plans for future learning

Sisältö:

Business Talk:

The course has a focus on verbal skills and the vocabulary of various business-related topics including meetings and negotiations. Active participation is mandatory. The course includes classroom sessions. Each classroom session is followed by homework which must be completed before the next session. The homework lessons will include vocabulary exercises, grammar and preparation of parts of a business plan. The course also includes group work for the compilation of a business plan. The course has an attendance policy due to the verbal nature of the course. You can miss two sessions if necessary. Any further absences will affect your grade and possibly cause you to fail the course.

Business Talk (International):

The course involves collaborative work between Finnish and international students, carried out by students in groups of five in the form of three projects on the following topics:

- i) the pros and cons of participating in a study exchange
- ii) education towards facing the challenges in tomorrow's world
- iii) academic learning cultures.

In addition, course requirements include a formal write-up of one of the projects. The write-up should be about 1500 words in length and should include a comprehensive references section.

Business Talk (Activation):

Easy communication tasks are provided to help you activate your use of English; you will spend a lot of time in class interacting in English with your classmates, in pairs or in small groups. Learning to learn is an important theme throughout the course, too; you will hear about a variety of alternative learning strategies (including some developed for dyslexics), and have opportunities to try them out. To help you reach an understanding of the learning strategies that work best for you, you will have chances to reflect together with your classmates, and compare past and present experiences of language learning.

Special attention is paid to the delivery of written communication.

In module two the focus is on business contracts written in English. Participants will read and understand some basic contract types used in business transactions and international cooperation. The course includes four lectures on common law and civil law traditions and structure and language features of common law contracts. In the next part, students will analyze and interpret sample contracts, in addition to learning fundamental legal English vocabulary. Writing tasks include drafting a sales agreement and translating certain contractual elements, which will be useful in future business relations.

Osaamistavoitteet:

By the end of the course, you are expected to be able to:

1. understand clearly-spoken English on a range of topics discussed in class
2. participate in pairwork discussion of familiar everyday topics
3. describe your own language learning style, with reference to a variety of learning strategies presented in class
4. self-evaluate objectively, and describe plans for future learning

Sisältö:

Easy communication tasks are provided to help you activate your use of English; you will spend a lot of time in class interacting in English with your classmates, in pairs or in small groups. Learning to learn is an important theme throughout the course, too; you will hear about a variety of alternative learning strategies (including some developed for dyslexics), and have opportunities to try them out. To help you reach an understanding of the learning strategies that work best for you, you will have chances to reflect together with your classmates, and compare past and present experiences of language learning.

In the School of Architecture, your English studies take place in the spring term of your first year and continue in the autumn of the second year. This course is organized in the spring. The course is offered in two versions, one for 2 op and one for 3 op (54 hrs work and 80 hrs work). Students with the matriculation exam grade laudatur or eximia cum laude approbatur take the 2 op course and others take the 3 op course.

Osaamistavoitteet:

By the end of the course, students will be able to

- demonstrate appropriate use of professional vocabulary
- develop efficient strategies and methods for maintaining their English proficiency
- use the core vocabulary and discourse patterns required for professional description and critique of architectural design
- demonstrate oral and written skills and presentation techniques necessary for working in a multicultural environment

Sisältö:

In this course, you will focus on developing oral and written English language skills which enable you to follow developments in your own field of architecture and get along in an international, intercultural environment with a sufficient level of proficiency.

The course provides students with the opportunity to develop professional and academic communication and field-related competences. Students will participate in simulated professional events including a project presentation, building/design presentation, discussion and critiquing of architectural solutions and case studies.

By the end of the course students are able to:

- define and demonstrate the use of vocabulary and specialized terms related to their field of study
- summarize texts in field-related subjects at a satisfactory level of understanding
- analyze longer texts in order to locate desired information and complete specific tasks.

Sisältö:

This course is 4 credits and these four credits consist of two parts.

The first part of the course is Integrated Text.

Integrated Text is integrated in that books which are used in the subject studies will be used in this course. These books include 1) Drury, C.: Management and Cost Accounting, 7th ed, 2) Mankiw and Taylor; Economics 2nd or 3rd edition, and 3) Kotler and Armstrong; Principles of Marketing 15th edition. Changes in literature requirements are possible if the faculty changes reading requirements. Books are chosen which are required reading in subject courses in Oulu Business School and they will be used in this course along with other texts. Students will practice strategies for reading academic texts, for note-taking, for summarizing, and students will gain practice in preparing and presenting presentations. There is a strong emphasis on field-related vocabulary development. Students will work in study groups in addition to attending classroom sessions.

The second part of the course is Business Studies. Business Studies is an intensive study group or self-study course which consists of nine lessons in three packages. Each lesson is designed to take about four hours of time. Students should carefully read the materials, complete exercises, watch videos and focus on learning a lot of new vocabulary. Following every third lesson there will be a vocabulary and concept exam to measure how well information has been understood and internalized. Each exam should be passed before students should move on to the next lesson package. Business Studies is designed according to the following learning objectives. The student can demonstrate the ability to read, interpret and understand field-related texts at a satisfactory level of understanding. The student will expand his or her professional and business-related vocabulary. The student will demonstrate the ability to analyze longer texts in order to locate desired information and complete specific tasks.

Järjestämistapa:

Multimodal teaching

Toteutustavat:

This course begins with Integrated Text and Lexicon and is followed by the Business Studies part.

Integrated Text and Lexicon is a course with 6 classroom sessions, each followed by a study group session and homework. At the end, students attend an exam session.

Following the exam session the course will continue with the introductory session of Business Studies. At this introductory session, students will receive study group packages 1-3. Students will complete the packages within their group and individually. The study group sessions are followed by a feedback session with the teacher or a virtual feedback session/method. Students will study for one more week and then attend an exam session. At the exam session they will receive study group packages 4-6. The process will be repeated and at the second exam session the students will receive study group packages 7-9 which will also be tested at exam session 3.

In order to receive credit for the course each student will be required to pass all four exams. The schedule follows:

Introductory Session in classroom with teacher

Study group sessions

Feedback session covering Lessons 1-3

Exam session 1-3 Distribution of lessons 4-6

Study group sessions

- to be able to identify and explain the dimensions of cultural variation
- to have developed a repertoire of effective intercultural communication strategies for both working life and everyday situations
- know the meaning and have demonstrated the use of specialized terms related to cross-cultural issues
- be able to discuss cross-cultural issues and concepts with a good degree of fluency utilizing appropriate vocabulary be able to present clear, detailed descriptions and viewpoints on topics related to cross-cultural issues.

Sisältö:

The goal of this course is to increase students' understanding and awareness of culture and its influence on communication, as well as to develop the intercultural communication strategies relevant to the business world. Topics to be covered are: intercultural awareness, perception & culture, theories of intercultural communication, culture shock, non-verbal communication, cultural identity, and ethics & negotiation in intercultural business contexts. In addition we know that research has shown that business failures abroad have been and are a result of the inability to understand and adapt to foreign ways of thinking and acting, not technical or professional incompetence. International negotiation comes hand in hand with many challenges which arise from basic cultural differences. Even within one culture successful negotiation is dependent on many interconnected variables. In cross-cultural negotiation, this variety of variables broadens and values disperse. Variables of negotiation will be examined and prescribed "ways of doing business" and dimensions of business in different cultures will be examined as well.

Ajoitus:

The course is run in both autumn and spring semesters.

Osaamistavoitteet:

Learning outcomes - By the end of the course, you are expected to:

1. have demonstrated oral fluency for dealing with a wide variety of academic, professional and social situations
2. have demonstrated a reasonable degree of spontaneity when expressing your own thoughts and opinions in paired or small group discussions,
3. have demonstrated understanding of others' contributions in paired or small group discussions
4. have initiated self-directed language learning strategies, including personal goal-setting and self-evaluation, to help you learn effectively in future.

Sisältö:

Designed for students with weaker self-confidence as English-speakers, this course aims to facilitate the development of oral fluency. The lessons offer extensive speaking practice in pairs and small groups, activating passive knowledge of vocabulary and structure, and helping you gain confidence in your English speaking and listening skills.

This module offers a comfortable environment in which to practice speaking over a wide range of different oral communication activities, including simulations, role-play, improvised or guided situational dialogue, and free conversation. You will also develop your English communication skills and language learning strategies through self-directed homework activities, on which you will report regularly in class.

Osaamistavoitteet:

After the course, students are expected to be able to:

- use principles of good presentation and speech structuring for optimal clarity
- establish and maintain audience rapport in presenting or debating settings
- speak to the audience without relying on pre-written material
- use principles of good slideshow design to complement preparation, subject knowledge and English language skills
- use observation of self and others to continue developing and fine-tuning presentation and debating skills

Sisältö:

The aim of the course is to help students at all levels to better conceptualise what constitutes a good presentation or debating speech, and to develop their confidence through practice in speaking to and interacting with audiences.

In the early weeks of the course, an emphasis on oral exercises in small groups, including short impromptu speeches, supports development of presenting and debating skills. Students are introduced to and discuss key concepts in presentation giving and speech-making, for example getting started, topic research, organisation of content, clear articulation, use of visual aids, and audience interaction. Larger homework tasks include the preparation of one classroom presentation and one classroom debate, while study-circle work outside of the classroom requires teams of students to hold further presentations and debates, submitting reports and self-critiques on their performance and developing skills in these areas, to the teacher.

- to have demonstrated appropriate strategies and techniques for learning English efficiently
- to be able to explain the influence of language on social and intercultural relationships in your future professional activities

Sisältö:

PET aims to help you develop a range of professional language skills related to your own specialist field. Scheduled as the first module of your English studies, the PET module has a strong focus on developing speaking skills, and thus gives you an excellent opportunity to get to know your fellow students while working in pairs and groups. The experiences of communication gained in class, mediated by critical reflection on the nature of language and intercultural communication, offer you the chance of extending your interpersonal and intercultural skills through the medium of English. In addition, the module helps you to direct your own learning, encouraging you to reflect upon which aspects of your English you would like to develop further during your studies, and upon developing strategies and techniques for effective language learning. During PET, you will participate in simulated professional events such as a trade fair and factory tour, and give process/company presentations.

Objective: Students will be expected to handle readings on economic and political issues. They will need to be able to contribute their ideas and opinions in various discussion settings. There are relatively few writing tasks; however, the students need to have a good command of the English grammar.

Learning outcomes: By the end of the course students are able to:

- read critically and analyse what they have read by examining and discussing world issues
- discuss and participate actively and effectively in group discussions
- present information in presentations of a pre-selected country.

Sisältö:

This course serves as a map on the world and brings together many related fields of study under the broad categories of geography, political science, economics, and mass communications. At the start of the course each student is asked to choose a region of the world he/she would like to get to know more in-depth.
