JOHTAMINEN

Management is part of the Degree Programme in International Business and Management. Companies are moving from the principles of governing and defending their territories to the continually running the creation of new businesses. Business dynamism is changing the required skills; from managing of existing businesses more efficiently towards leading the creation of newness value. We develop our students' skills to create high-growth business. Central topics are (1) the creation and management of new business; (2) managing knowledge, learning and competencies; (3) the globalization of organizations, change and growth; (4) organizational creativity and strategic principles.

Management's teaching provides theoretical and practical tools and skills to create and manage successfully high growth oriented, technology based business in dynamic business environments. Basic studies: We help you to understand the underlying driving mechanisms and patterns of dynamic business environments. Intermediate studies: We help you to develop the skills to co-create the solutions to business problems. Advanced studies: We help you to build growth business and simplify and give direction to complex situations. The central learning themes and courses are presented in the following figure.

What consequences does all this have on teaching management? Complex and multidimensional, the task facing the management student could be described as follows: management is like joining a game halfway through without knowing what the game is all about or what its goals are, and yet you are expected to grasp its essence and figure out what problem needs to be solved - and then solve it. In other words, management is not an activity, where all the pieces are known before the game begins, and the right solution is arrived at simply by arranging the pieces correctly (as in a jigsaw puzzle). Rather, it is a game, whose name, pieces, rules, logic and outcome have to be decided, while it is in progress. Having the skills to needed to play the game is a crucial success factor in the dynamic organizations of the digital age. The courses will be taught in intensive sessions consisting of field work, workshops, guest lectures and group-work. The main method is solution creation to real business situations by using problem-based learning.

Upon completing the course, students will recognize the fundamental concepts, historical developments, and schools of management. The course aims to develop students' basic management capabilities in three ways: by developing their skills as effective learners through analyzing their learning processes and creating their own personalized development plan, by ensuring they interact effectively with others, and by enhancing their skills as reflective practitioners by exploring the methods by which management theory can be applied to improve management practice.

Scope:
Management is inherently about discussing the needs of a social context in order to initiate behavior that satisfies the needs of that social context. Management is more about understanding and providing guidance than about making decisions or rational analyses, although these are also necessary. In this process, managers assume the central role by recognizing new ideas for business development developed by the organizational system, discovering customer needs in the context, organizing resources and actions to link business ideas and customer needs, and finally transferring the created new value to larger markets. The course considers the practice of contemporary management and the ways in which management theory has developed. The goal is to understand the challenges facing today's managers by introducing the historical developments of management thinking, a range of essential concepts, and equipping students with the skills to think critically and creatively about management.

Implementation:
The course will be taught through intensive sessions consisting of fieldwork, workshops, guest lectures, and group work. A 70% attendance of sessions is required. Further details will be provided by the responsible person in the first session.
