Admission requirements

All students presently enrolled and registered at the University of Oulu are entitled to study General Linguistics. The only prerequisite for taking classes in General Linguistics is the completion of 695250Y Introduction to General Linguistics.

Study guidance

The person responsible for General Linguistics is the lecturer of General Linguistics, Santeri Palviainen, who can be reached in room HU129 during office hours, via telephone (+358294483482) and email. Information about the office hours can be obtained from the website.

General Overview

General Linguistics programme at the University of Oulu offers students 60 ECTS credits of instruction (Basic Studies 25 ECTS credits and Intermediate Studies 35 ECTS credits). General Linguistics cannot, however, be studied as a major subject in the University. Studies in the programme aim to familiarise the students with the general principles of the scientific study of natural language. General Linguistics uses concrete language materials from different languages as data and utilizes various theoretical and methodological approaches.

General Linguistics is a particularly suitable minor subject for students of the Finnish Language, Saami or other foreign languages, or students in the Logopedics program. For native speakers, General Linguistics provides a novel perspective on Finnish, Swedish and Saami in connection to other languages of the world. Students of foreign languages, too, can benefit from studies in General Linguistics, as the program provides the skills to analyse the structure of the languages they are studying.

Employment prospects

Studying General Linguistics helps prepare the students for various careers. General Linguistics is a useful minor subject not only for researchers but also for students planning to become teachers as it provides a wide perspective on the nature of language and grammar.

Practical information

Curriculum

The current curriculum of General Linguistics courses is available on the bulletin board of the program as well as on its website. Most of the courses may also be completed by book exam on the examination dates of the Faculty of Humanities (see individual course descriptions); examination dates of degree groups are not used, however. The scope of the book exams in ECTS credits is calculated according to the general instructions of the Faculty: one ECTS credit is approximately 170 pages of text in the student's native language or 100 pages in English or other language. Students may compile the Basic Studies module (25 ECTS credits) and Intermediate Studies module (35 ECTS credits) based on the available courses according to their own interests and needs. The only compulsory course is 694959Y Introduction to General Linguistics and Phonetics.

General Linguistics is closely linked with other programs in the Faculty of Humanities, and students may combine courses from Phonetics, Logopedics and various other disciplines (for example Finnish Language) with their studies in General Linguistics. The students themselves are responsible for taking care of possible overlaps and obtaining the required study rights.

Exams and sign-up

Several courses include exams. Lecture examinations do not require separate sign-up. Students must sign up for book exams on the Faculty examination dates in Weboodi 10 days in advance. Faculty examination dates can be found on the Faculty of Humanities' website.

Modules and learning outcomes

The aim of the Basic Studies is to provide a wide perspective on the various subsystems (phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics and pragmatics) related to the structure and use of language. During the Intermediate Studies, students deepen and learn to apply the knowledge acquired in the Basic Level courses. Students may use Intermediate Level courses when compiling their Basic Studies or, upon agreement, courses from other subjects as well.

Upon completion of the Basic Studies, students will be familiar with and can recognize various structures of language on different levels (sounds, forms, clauses and meaning). They can analyse and classify linguistic phenomena in different kinds of languages. Students have a grasp of the central linguistic terminology and can point out essential language theories.

Upon completion of the Intermediate Studies, students will be able to evaluate different language theories and combine previously learned structures with new structures. Students can evaluate the significance of central concepts and ideas in linguistics and their influence on the development of the field. Students can collect and classify their own linguistic data and make theoretical generalizations.
