The topics of interest for economics are rather diverse. The traditional division is to micro- and macroeconomics. In addition to these two main branches economics is divided into narrower subfields, which concentrate on specific problems. International economics, industrial organisation, money and banking, public finance, economic development, and environmental and resource economics are examples of such specialised areas of economics. Since economics is a tool oriented science a lot of emphasis in the curriculum is placed especially on quantitative methods and their applications to relevant problems.

After the basic level studies the student is familiar with the fundamental concepts in economics and the essential economic relationships. After the intermediate studies the student has obtained the knowledge of basic ideas in economic theory and methods, and is able to produce scientific writings. After the advanced levels studies the student has obtained skills to analytically solve economic problems and to conduct independent economic research.

Opettajat: Tuomas Takalo
Opintokohteen kielet: Finnish

ECTS Credits:
5 ects.
Language of instruction:
Finnish.
Timing:
Course is not lectured during the academic year 2009-2010.
Learning outcomes:
After completion the course students should be able to apply economic way of thinking in analysing the impact of intellectual property rights to the strategy of business management, to the incentives on innovations and to the welfare.
Contents:
Patents and other intellectual property rights, protection strategies of intellectual property, competition policy and immaterial rights, immaterial rights in digital economy and in network industries.
Grading:
1-5.
Person responsible:

721248A: Environmental and Resource Economics, 5 op
Learning outcomes:
Students can graphically and mathematically present the socially optimal level of pollution and define the efficiency conditions of the crucial policy instruments of pollution control. They can apply the most important methods for monetary valuation of environmental benefits and empirically analyse the demand of environmental commodities. In addition, students can formally present the models describing optimal use of natural resources and apply these models in practical decision making.

Contents:
With respect to environmental economics, the course consist of socially optimal pollution level, command-and-control regulation of pollution, pollution taxes, marketable permits, demand for environmental commodities, hedonic pricing methods, travel cost method, contingent valuation, and choice experiments. Regarding natural resources, the course covers topics on the optimal use of minerals (the Hotelling rule), the problem of open access in fishery, forest rotation models, and economics of forest conservation.

Learning activities and teaching methods:
24 hours of lectures, 12 hours of exercises, and independent reading of study materials.

Recommended or required reading:
Kolstad, C.D. (2000): Environmental Economics; Hartwick & Olewiler (1998): The Economics of Natural Resources Use (2ed). (The required sections of the books and the other material will be informed later.)

Assessment methods and criteria:
Lectures and literature examination, written reporting of exercises.

Grading:
1-5.

Opettajat: Juuttila, Juha Pekka
Opintokohteen kielet: Finnish
Voidaan suorittaa useasti: Kyllä

ECTS Credits: 5 ects.
Language of instruction: Finnish.
Timing: Period C.
Learning outcomes:
After completing the course students are familiar with aggregate economic phenomena, variables, and their measurement thoroughly. They are able to build up simple short- and medium term macroeconomic models based on modern approaches, enabling them to analyse for example the effects of economic policy actions on various markets, both in closed and open economies. The students are also familiar with the shortcomings of the models in explaining the cycles in the aggregate economy, and are able to discuss and analyse the functioning of forecasting models for the overall economy before, during and after aggregate economic crises.

Contents:
Principles of macroeconomics; measurement systems of aggregate economy; functioning of goods, money and labour markets; principles of dynamic models; monetary and financial policies; international monetary economy; inflation and business cycles; IS-LM model; AS-AD-model; open economy extensions; especial focus on the US, Euro area and Japanese economies.

Learning activities and teaching methods:
36 hours of lectures, 12 hours of exercises and independent reading of the textbooks and articles.

Recommended optional programme components:
Intermediate Microeconomics recommended.

Recommended or required reading:

Availability of course books.

Assessment methods and criteria:
Final exam (lectures + exercises + books and other material.

Opettajat: Puhakka Mikko
Opintokohteen kielet: English
Voidaan suorittaa useasti: Kyllä

ECTS Credits:
6 ects.
Language of instruction:
Finnish.
Timing:
Period A-B.
Learning outcomes:
After completing the course students have obtained the skills to apply high-level modern macroeconomic models in the analysis of aggregate economy. Compared to the intermediate level courses, based on a clearly more formal approach adopted in this course they are familiar with the most recent advances in the models for the short-, medium and long-term analyses of the aggregate economy. They are also able to apply these models for empirical research. All the methods and approaches studied during the course are useful in other areas of economics, too. After being introduced to the ideas of critical evaluation of current modern macro models the students will have good abilities to conduct theoretical and/or empirical thesis work in the special area of macroeconomics.

Contents:
Macroeconomic models for the short-and medium run analysis (IS-LM and AS-AD-models); business cycles; unemployment and stabilisation policy; functioning of housing markets; growth theory based on the Solow model and its variations; long-term unemployment and structural economic policies.

Learning activities and teaching methods:
40 hours of lectures, 18 hours of exercises and independent reading of the textbooks and articles given during the course.

Recommended optional programme components:
Intermediate Micro- and Macroeconomics, Mathematical Economics, Basic Econometrics.

Recommended or required reading:

Assessment methods and criteria:
2 mid-term exams / 1 final exam (lectures +exercises + literature and other material).

Grading:
1-5.

Opiskelumuoto: Advanced Studies
ECTS Credits:
30 ects.

Language of instruction:
Finnish.

Timing:
Periods: A-D.

Learning outcomes:
The aim is to write a thesis which shows the student's ability to apply the tools and methods of economics to solve, and shed light on, a research problem. Seminar presentations will also develop student's ability to communicate the results of his/her written work to an audience.

Contents:
During seminars student will prepare two presentations on his/her chosen topic. The first presentation covers the subject matter of the thesis and presents the preliminary contents of the thesis. The second (and the main) presentation concentrates on the research results obtained in the thesis.

Learning activities and teaching methods:
Seminars.

Recommended optional programme components:
A good knowledge of Economics, its tools and methods at the S (master) level.

Recommended or required reading:
