Interaction of Authorities and NGO in Social Health Issues of Children at Crime Risk

Affiliation and author information:
Elena Benusova, Northern (Arctic) Federal University named after M.V. Lomonosov, Russian Federation

ABSTRACT:
The article discusses ways of interaction between authorities and NGOs in order to raise the level of social health of children who have conflict with the law. Examples of joint activities of government agencies and NGOs are given. The author relies on the system of development of child-friendly justice in the sphere of criminal proceedings in Arkhangelsk region. The author investigates the peculiarity and role of non-profit organizations in rendering assistance on social adaptation of children at crime risk on the example of Arkhangelsk region. The place of NGOs in the system of social services of population is revealed. In conclusion we analyze problems and prospects of development of the NGOs as a providers of social services, representing a resource for effective solution of social health issues of adolescent offenders.